

Axelle Vadeboin

Avocate

Description

Axelle Vadeboin holds a Master's degree in environmental and urban planning law. She joined Adaltys as a lawyer in January 2025.

She works alongside Quentin Untermaier and Jean-Marc Petit, both in an advisory capacity and in litigation, on all issues related to environmental law, urban planning, and development.

She advises local authorities and private operators (developers, promoters, renewable energy players), particularly on environmental assessment procedures, public participation and environmental authorisation, as well as on issues related to exemptions for protected species.

She also handles cases relating to facilities classified for environmental protection (ICPE), waste law, polluted sites and soils, water policing and nature protection, both in an advisory and litigation capacity.
