

Construction And Building Products & Materials

The building and public works sector (BTP) is essential to our economy. It is a pillar and an engine of growth.

The famous phrase "When the building industry is going, everything is going" by Martin Nadaud, a bricklayer before becoming a member of parliament and then a prefect, is eloquent on this subject. Adaltys advises and assists the actors of the three main families of the building and public works sector

Specialized construction, which includes structural and finishing companies,

The construction and the real estate promotion with the real estate developers,

Civil engineering and public works.

Adaltys also advises and assists sellers and manufacturers of construction products and materials.

Adaltys meets the legal assistance needs of the actors of this sector and helps them to adapt to the challenges of sustainable development, renewable energies, but also to the ever more stringent regulations.
