

Major Cultural And Sports Projects

Organising major national and international events, changing practices and developments in the field of security have led players in the sports and cultural sectors to build new facilities or adapt existing ones.

Whether it involves the construction of a new stadium or a temporary structure, the renovation of a cultural site classified as a historical monument or the creation of a temporary installation within a passenger station, Adaltys works alongside public players (public authorities) and their private partners (federations, clubs, associations, etc.) to support them on such projects.

The firm offers know-how, enabling these operators to act securely and understand the real estate rights-of-way required for their operations, to obtain all the required administrative authorisations and to conclude public and private law contracts guaranteeing the success of their projects.

Adaltys thus provides its clients with the opportunity to assemble multi-disciplinary teams, to benefit from a global and operational approach to all the issues raised by their projects.

Adaltys has also developed first-rate expertise in assisting its clients in the organisation of temporary sports or cultural events, which call for specific questions in terms of safety, organisers' liability and public reception.
