

Energy And Environment

Today, sustainable development is based on two pillars: energy and the environment.

In addition to the fact that energy production and consumption are the main causes of CO2 emissions worldwide, any major industrial or real estate project must integrate, throughout its implementation, issues of sustainable development and acceptability.

To meet this expectation, Adaltys has set up since 2008 two complementary expert teams, in energy and environmental matters, under the aegis of two referenced partners.

Operational and demanding, our teams are involved in public and private projects requiring in-depth expertise in both advisory and litigation matters.