

Ports – Airports

Ports and airports are essential economic infrastructures in France and Europe. Their development requires comprehensive support based on specialised and complementary expertise.

The projects carried out by port and airport authorities involve a multitude of players and require competent, versatile and highly responsive consulting teams.

Over the years, Adaltys has acquired first-rate expertise by advising several major seaports and airports on the definition and implementation of their complex projects, defending their interests in the context of major disputes, renewing concessions and, more generally, enhancing the value of their public domains.

Recent interventions:

- Le Havre port (GPMH): indemnity litigation initiated by a terminal operator following a delay in the availability of facilities following a shifting operation (stakes: €45 million - successful in appeal)
- Marseille port (GPMM): Contractual litigation initiated by an operator of several forms of ship repair who was ousted from the award of a future 21-year contract (success before the summary proceedings judge)
- Lyon Airport
